THEY DISCUSS MORMONISM

Perowan would have to be dispensed with. Later in the proceedings, however, the presbyiery decided to assume the expense of keeping Rev. Leverett there for six months. The financial condition of the Presbytery was seen to be far from excellent, and a resolution prohibiting any member from receiving over $850 a year from the general lower ways aread but tabled.

A resolution showing the Presbytery's appreciation of the American Tract society's work was passed on by unanimous vote. This, with minor reports of elders and other work which had been interspersed through all the work, finished the business of the session.

"The Work of the Holy Spirit" was then discussed by Rev. A. C. Todd. He considered the holy spirit to be the motive power which caused the forces of cature to work for the creation of

By far the most interesting person in attendance at the Presbytery is Dr. Samuel E. Wishard. It will be forty years this winter since he began his ministry. He has been a prodigious worker all the time, yet he is hearty and his pleasant face is the picture of health. While most of the other pastors have rooms at the hotels, he has of health. While most of the other pas-tors have ruoms at the hotels, he has his tent pitched on the lawn back of the church and there has his Bible and other books, a comfortable bed, two candles, the needed number of seats and he is living a camp out life, of the flood last Sunday ran through his tent but he had plenty of hay strewn over the floor and the mud has proved no hindrance. Tonight as he was sitover the floor and the mud has proved no hindrance. Tonight as he was sitting inside the door of his tent your correspondent called on him. He was cordially welcomed and the learned divine spen; an hour conversing on municipal, moral, religious and semi-temporal affairs. He showed an aptness at discussing each and was never subject. The old gentleman is a lover of his work. He took pride in telling that he had a daughter in China who that he had a daughter in China who had spent fourteen years in missionary work. He talked freely on salvation and thought that all good men of every sect were Christ's chosen people and would receive equally of his blessings. "I have been in the ministry forty years." said he, "and never yet have I had a quarrel with a preacher of any other sect. I had a discussion with Eliders Penrose and Roberts at Nephi but it was all friendly and why shouldn't all controversies be?"

The committee on foreign missions reported that there was a falling off in the help they were receiving, having received but $40 for the year.

Several miscellaneous reports were given at this place in the proceedings. The report of the committee on home missions came up for consideration and no important business was deale until after some discussion it was decided that on account of the low state of the finances, the ministeral work in Perowan would have to be dispensed with. The Presbytery seems yet unsatisfied with the ten reasons for not considering the Latter-day Saints worthy of fellowship among Christian churches, and a committee had been appointed to be excused from acting on the committee and Dr. McNiece replaced him. The committee was instructed to report at the meeting of the Presbytery during the October syrod.
